SCHOOL NEAR GREEN BAY BURNS DOWN

GREEN BAY, Wis.—Fire, starting from an undetermined cause, gutted the two-story brick Chappell school which is one half mile from the city Tuesday. The flames were discovered at noon when the 75 pupils and four teachers were out to lunch. An alarm was turned in, but due to the heavy snowdrifts, the fire department was unable to reach the fire in time to extinguish it. The loss is not known.

SUGGESTS WITNESS DREAMED EXECUTION OF A. E. F. SOLDIER

WASHINGTON.—The suggestion that G. W. Yarborough, of Roanoke, Alabama, "dreamed" he witnessed the shooting of an American soldier by a firing squad in France was made Tuesday before a senate investigating committee by Colonel Holstead Dorey of the Fourth Infantry, who denied he ever heard of such an incident.

"Ye Actor"
"Ta, what's an actor?" "An actor, my boy, is a person who can walk to the side of a stage, peer into the wings at a group of other actors, waiting for their cues, a number of bored stage hands, and a lot of theatrical olds and ends, and exclaim: 'What a lovely view there is from this window!'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Babies first!

Your Heating Expert can install ARCOLA at once; and keep the house warm for the babies while he is doing it.

THE dangerous weeks are just ahead—the weeks of coughs and colds.

Hot air heat means that some rooms are cold and some are hot. ARCOLA's hot-water warmth means an American Radiator in each room—the same Radiators that warm fine homes and buildings throughout the world.

Right now is the economical time to install ARCOLA.
Your Heating Expert has time these days; he will be rushed later on.

Telephone him for an estimate. And remember that in the long run the cost comes back to you.

ARCOLA pays for itself in the fuel it saves.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR SOLDIER KILLED IN FRANCE

Remains of Sylvester O'Meara Interred at Lewiston Under Auspices of the Legion

LEWISTON, Minn.—The remains of Sylvester O'Meara, which arrived from France recently, were buried with fitting services at this place. The young man was born in Fremont township, Winona county, on July 30, 1895, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs.
Philip O'Meara. His childhood and young manhood was spent in Winona county. He entered the army on February 23, 1918.

By reference to the army records of the young man's former friend and also a Lewiston boy, Walter Hunt-man, it is found that these two young men left Lewiston for Camp Dodge on February 23, 1918, and after training there for some time they went to Camp Sevier, N. C., early in May.
From there, they were sent to Camp Mills, N. Y., and sailed from New York city on May 11. Eleven days later, their ship ran down an American submarine chaser, the accident occurring in a dense fog. The smaller vessel sank and the transport had to turn in one side a hole that caused much delay and special efforts to save it, also, from sinking. Upon its arrival at Liverpool, Eng., on May 23, the two Lewiston boys marched with the arrangements for the funeral services of young O'Meara were under the auspices of the American Legion post of Lewiston, which bears his name.

Rev. J. H. Madden, resident priest of Lewiston and of St. Rose of Lima's church there, read the requiem mass and gave a fervent tribute to his servant which followed. To the young man's fine qualities of mind and heart.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS

Notice is hereby given by the Board of Public Works of the City of La Crosse that pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of said City on January 13th, 1922, providing that it is expedient and necessary that the following streets to-wit:

Mississippi Street from East Avenue to 20th Street, Winnebago Street from East Avenue to 21st Street, 19th Street from Jackson Street to Market Street, 20th Street from Jackson Street to a point 130 north of Market Street be improved by grading and otherwise improving said streets at the expense of the real estate to be benefited as provided for in Section 925-172 to 925-200 inclusive of the Wisconsin Statutes, and all amendments to said sections.

And we, the Board of Public Works, having first been duly organized, personally viewed and examined and considered each parcel of real estate affected by said contemplated improvement and each of the several parcels thereof that would be benefited or damaged by said contemplated work or improvement, we duly filed a report in our office covering all said improvements and all improvements to be by us confirmed and showing the entire cost of the contemplated work or improvements upon the Streets above mentioned, the benefits and damages that will accrue to the several parcels of real estate affected by said work or improvement and the amount that should be assessed under the provisions of the law to each parcel of said real estate for benefits accruing thereto by such contemplated work or improvement.
Notice is hereby given that said report so made is on file and is open for review in our office, in the City Hall, and will be so continued for the space of ten days from and after the date hereof.

On the 21st day of February, 1922, at Nine o'clock in the forenoon the said Board of Public Works will be in session to hear all objections that may be made to such report.

Dated this 8th day of February, 1922.

BLESSING
The Lord bless thee, and keep thee. The Lord make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee. The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace.—Numbers 6: 24, 26.

Scouting

SCOUTING centers about a program of recreational activities for boys' leisure time. Its objective is character development. The program and the objective may at first seem somewhat contradictory for how can so serious a thing as character be developed out of play? Scouting finds the answer by giving the boy in his play a man of character for his leader, who will be his companion and "chum". Through interest in his play activities, the man acquires influence over the boy and the boy finds companionship in the man. In the vital contact thus established the man shares with the boy, on the basis of friendship, the ideals of his life. By precept and practice, consciously and unconsciously, the boy is "infected through contact". Literally, the character of the man, his friend and boon companion, is "caught" by the boy.

The scout master is the backbone of scouting. So the problem of scouting is how to secure men with character who will through fellowship with boys on the boys' own basis of play activities, realize the movement's chief objective, character development.

The scouting program appeals to boys because its activities meet their instinctive needs as directly and vitally and naturally as food and drink minister to their bodily demands. Because of this, boys have followed the call of scouting as men of other times responded to the call of the wild.

Our Opportunity

THE year 1922 should be a momentous one in the history of recovery and reconstruction after the world war. War passions and the follies they engendered in national policies in the years just following the armistice seem in many points to have exhausted themselves, and the outlook for a saner and therefore more useful approach to the problems which lie between us and "normalcy" is perceptibly brighter. The Washington conference has in a measure cleared the skies. It revealed the powers as willing to place some of their interests upon the conference table for discussion, and as ready to make substantial concessions in regard to them in the interests of peace. Much remains to be done—more than was done at the conference, without doubt—but it was a beginning, and in that it extinguished the smoldering spark of war in the Pacific a very promising beginning.

The world would heartily have appreciated some sort of arrangement in regard to land armaments as an issue of the Washington conference, but the tentative efforts to bring up the question raised such a storm that it was evidently a premature plan. Premature, because the matter of land armaments is primarily a European question. The only big land armaments are those maintained in European countries. And this, as practically all other European political questions, is wrapped up with the economic issues which trouble the continent. Disarmament in Europe hinges upon the disposition of these heavily charged economic matters, and it could not be dealt with by the Washington conference because the economic issues remained unsolved. It is plainly apparent now, if it had been doubted before, that an economic modus vivendi must be discovered between the European nations before the question of land armament can be broached.

The connection between the interests of the United States, therefore, and the approaching Geneva economic conference is patent. This country wants nothing so little as war. Yet it is a lesson twice impressed by our history that a general European war will ultimately involve us. Our interest is wholly on the side of bringing about that reduction of armaments and amicable arrangement for peaceful settlements which will make a renewal of war on the continent remote or impossible. If this is an economic matter—and few will argue that the economic side is not now paramount in European affairs—the interest of the United States requires every effort upon our part for a successful outcome of the Geneva conference. The fiction of isolation of our country from all others has been abandoned by the Washington conference. In that important meeting we frankly undertook to guide our policies by those of other countries that agreed to do the same in relation to us; we even surrendered tangible portions of our "sovereign right" to build warships and fortify our island possessions in the interest of peace and concord with foreign powers. If it was no strain upon our conception of American purpose and interest to do this in the east, neither should it bother us greatly to take a similar part in the affairs of Europe in which we have at least as important an interest as we have in the Pacific.

That the logic of this is felt in Washington is indicated by the dispatches which predict our government will accept the invitation to sit in the Geneva conference. One hopes that these forecasts will be verified by the event, and that the acceptance will be an agreement to take the full, authoritative share in the deliberations which is our due. The settlement of the economic complications of Europe, so inextricably bound up with the present plight of labor, farm and business in this country, is not one in which ours is the passive part of mere observers. America should go to Geneva with the best brains at its command, prepared to use to the utmost the power of our wealth and friendship in silencing the selfish squabbles of the continent and bringing about a genuine, workable and enduring peace.

The Younger Set

BY JANE OSBORN

"Gosh!" said Mrs. Gleason, pushing her small feet painfully into smaller dancing slippers. "Excuse me, Tom, for saying 'gosh,' but honestly I'd rather scrub floors than to go to that dance."

Tom Gleason looked sympathetically from his post before the chiffonier, where he was struggling with the strands of his evening shirt. "I suppose we've got to go."

"Oh, I suppose so," said the young wife, now carefully brushing the collar of Tom's evening coat as it lay on the bed. "Housework and the twins are nothing to compare with what I have to undergo for that 'younger set.' I promised to chaperon them, Grace Hayes will meet us at the clubhouse and will be back for the night. Your brother, I suppose, will be there and he'll want the other spare room. I thought once we'd put off a match with him."

"Then," echoed Tom sneeringly. "They're just like the rest of the younger set. Crazy for excitement—they'll never settle down and have real happiness the way we did. Young people are different nowadays. Tom was all of five years older than his brother James, and Mrs. Gleason was two years older than Grace Hayes, yet these two felt the advantage of many years."

So the Gleasons, and in their last, went to the dance at the country club, leaving the shuffling twins in the custodianship of the maid of all work, who also snubbed in her room at the third floor.

An hour later Jim Gleason tried the front door of the Gleason suburban home. He found it locked and made an unceremonious entrance through a partly open front window. He took off his hat and coat and then his shoes, rummaged the coat and found a pair of slippers and a smoking jacket of his brother's in a downstairs hall closet. A foraging expedition in the kitchen resulted in some crackers of his sister-in-law's baking and some apples. These he laid on the table beside the easy chair in front of the fireplace. He filled his pipe with his brother's tobacco, poked the embers, threw on a fresh log and sat down to enjoy all the comforts of a home that was not his own.

"This comfort he enjoyed alone for an hour. At 10:30 he heard a knock at the door and opened it to see Grace Hayes in day clothes with an over-night bag in her hand.

"I thought you'd be at the dance," she said with some hauteur and some apology.

"No," drawled James, assisting Grace out with her wraps and sending her in a second easy chair beside the fire. "I can't stand the pace. I said I might come, but it was only for an excuse to spend the night here. How these married people want to get about as they do I can't say. With a home like this—baths a cruder and an apple," he interrupted, pointing to the apples on the table. "Now, if I had a little house like this and a wife, believe me, I'd stay at home! But then, we're different. Since the war fellows have known how to appreciate a home. But that older married set all they think of is excitement, looking and jazz and all that sort of thing."

Grace looked wistfully into the fire. "I know," she said. "Girls are different now. They're more serious." Then there was a long and rather painful silence. Then James Gleason bent toward Grace, who was sitting up straight in her chair. "Grace, won't you marry me?"

"No," said Grace, still very wistful, and she nodded her head slowly and looked into the fire. "I think I would marry you if I married any one, Jimmy, but I'm afraid of marriage. It seems to change people so. I'm afraid that once I was married I'd be like your sister-in-law. And you might change about and be as mad about dancing and excitement as Tom. I'd rather go on dreaming about a home than to have a home of my own and not appreciate it."

"It was James' turn to look wistfully into the fire and shake his head sadly. He had been pleasantly surprised to hear Grace say that she would marry him if she married any one. That was something of a comfort.

"I get your point of view, Grace," he said. "It would be frightful to find yourself in a home like this, for instance, and not appreciate it, or to be married to the girl you loved and find her unwilling to stay home for a quiet evening. I'd be sorry for Tom, only I think he's as far gone as Mabel." Another pause ensued. "Could we get engaged and see how that affected us?"

"That would be a trial engagement," Grace looked a little shocked. "No, Jimmy, I never intend to be engaged except to the man I marry. When I do get engaged I want to be married very soon. You know, I take these things so seriously. I think all the girls in our set do. They are so different from the older girls like Mabel."

The matter seemed settled. For a few minutes they sat and exchanged a few remarks about the weather and plays they had or hadn't seen. Then one of the twins walked out from the floor above, and Grace, with Tom in her wake, fled to the nursery. They were busy executing requests for drinks of water when Tom and Mabel let themselves in the front door below.

The twins again tucked quietly in their adjoining cribs Jim and Grace dropped their way in the dark upstairs hall toward the stairs. Jim held Grace's arm very close to his side, so that she would not stumble. They heard the voices of Tom and Mabel below and they hesitated to listen.

"Well, we're back again to home, sweet home," said Tom. He was sitting in the chair just vacated by James and Mabel was in Grace's chair. James and Grace went noiselessly down to the landing where they could see them. Then Tom leaned toward Mabel and took her hand in his. "There's nothing like it, is there, little wife?" he said. "More than ever I can't understand the point of view of the younger set. There's my brother, Jim, could marry any day, he wanted to. Burns more than I do."

"And there's Grace," continued Mabel. "She's independent herself. That makes you deaf with jazz. He never heard of 'proof' or 'blush.' 'I'll tell the world,' or 'damn.'"

SUPPRESSED DESIRES
An English boy in his early teens has become so well known as a natural history student that he has been invited to go on a great Nature Hunt lasting three years. No boy has ever gone on such a trip before.
Guy Wernham, the young naturalist, took up the collecting of insects as soon as he was old enough to run about and catch them, and he has kept working at his hobby ever since. Nearly every boy at some time has the "collecting craze," but few make such a study of collecting as Guy Wernham has done.
"Just think of an 8,000-mile collecting trip," he says. "No wonder it appealed to me when a collector for the Natural History Museum offered to take me out to West Africa to assist him in the collecting of specimens for the Museum."
Guy will spend at least a year at the home of the collector in Africa, which is 40 miles from the nearest white neighbor. Then he and his friend will make a tour of the northern part of the French Cameroons and other parts of northwest Africa. They are going to hunt particularly for bats, rats, squirrels, monkeys and leopards.
"The greatest fun," Guy says, "will be night hunts for bats and moths, which we catch by spraying the trees with a mixture of rum and sugar, and by hanging up bags soaked in essence to attract them."
And this is how they will catch monkeys: A wide-netted bottle containing nuts will be fastened to a tree and the monkey, seeing his favorite food, will put his hand in the bottle, will grasp the nuts and will then be caught, for he does not know enough to let go of the nuts and get free—just like a monkey.
Guy is one boy whose hobby turned out to be something greater than he ever dreamed of.

Marguerita had spent all the past winter living in the city with her aunt and studying violin. All summer she had been doing concert work, and doing very well for so young a girl. Now she was going home and her mother and father were nearly bursting with pride.
"My dear," said her mother, a little timidly, when Marguerita had been home only a short while, "I've promised that you would play for one of the programs given by the Community Club at the high school next week. They are so anxious to hear you—all the home folks."
Marguerita looked annoyed. "I'm afraid they won't appreciate my technique," she said. "I am used to playing for people who know something about music."
"They'll like anything you play," said her mother. Her father looked at her keenly and said nothing.
Two days before the program, Dr. Pratt, Marguerita's father, came into the parlor where she was practicing. "What are you going to play Wednesday night, Marguerita?" he asked. She gave him a list, all of it selections from opera and difficult classical music. "It's a well-balanced program," he said, scanning the list with an expert eye.
"So it is," he said gravely. "but—come, walk with me a little in the garden. There are still so many lovely flowers left. They walked along in silence. "These are just old-fashioned flowers," he said, "next year we want to grow some orchids, and—"
"Why, father," she said, "these are just the flowers for a nice, country home like this. Orchids are beautiful, but they are out of place, and—" she looked at him strangely, as if struck by a sudden thought. They went back to the house.
When Marguerita finished playing her piece at the Community Club, the audience, nearly deafened by her applause, they looked up at her with smiling tenderness, as she played again, "Annie Laurie."

BLAINE PAYS HONOR TO HENRY KRUMREY AT CHEESE MEETING

Declares no Single Person Has Done so Much as He to Promote Sound Co-operation

APPROVES ORGANIZATION OF FARMERS TO ELIMINATE WASTE

Must Have Faith in Business and Ability to Handle it

PLYMOUTH, Wis.—Farmers must have faith in their own business and their own ability to conduct their own business if cooperative associations are to succeed in Wisconsin.

Gov. J. J. Blaine said in an address before a meeting of the Wisconsin Cheese Federation here Wednesday.

He expressed the belief that farmers can best serve state's agricultural interests by organizing cooperatively and by eliminating waste, because he said, "By action individually farmers may now and then profit individually, but in the long run they will find themselves the victims of a highly organized corporate and monopolistic system with profits and dividends the only object and end sought."

Blaine, who recently was found dead in his home here, Governor Blaine said, "There is no single individual during our time who has done so much to develop sound co-operation."

"The Wisconsin Cheese Federation, as a cooperative movement," he said, "has been organized along the best and soundest lines possible. With the perfection of the cooperative law at the last session of the legislature, the federation was entering into a program that means much to save the dairy interests of Wisconsin."

"To maintain the dairy industry is to maintain our economic and industrial soundness and to preserve the dairy industry means the preservation of our agricultural standing. Because of the dairy industry, Wisconsin has been able to stand the shock of the post-war period far better than other states lacking a highly developed dairy interest."

"Filled with the inspiration that Henry Krumrey has surely bequeathed to this federation, the institution, founded in wisdom and built on sound lines, will continue to perform the service and the accomplishments of which he dreamed."

"This federation affords such great service to the dairy interests of the state that its success is assured, and his meeting guarantees that the federation will continue and will go forward as the greatest cooperative movement within a single state."

"It belongs to the cheese producers, and they have demonstrated their ability to successfully market their product. Throughout the years of its existence it has been a profitable organization and its future success depends entirely upon the loyalty of members."

SPARTA LYCEUM COURSE TO HAVE THREE NUMBERS

SPARTA, Wis.—There are three remaining numbers on the Sparta Lyceum course for this winter, and already plans are being made for an especially strong course next year. Seven big numbers have been constructed for from the University of Wisconsin.

In this course The Davis Opera company presents the comic opera "The Mikado"; Robert O. Reiges, violinist and entertainer in the program. The Lincoln Jubilee Singers, five colored people in a festival of songs. The Grant-Hodley Concert Quintette in fine music; the Edward Clark Concert Trio; Wilson Charles Bayard Mitchell, of the Methodist church, will deliver a lecture and Edna Swanson, Ver Har of the Chicago Opera company, accompanied by Vera Poppe, a distinguished cellist and a fine pianist.

The three remaining numbers for this year are: Feb. 15, The Tennessee Duo, musicians and readers; March 14, Miss Myra Catherine Smith, reader and interpreter of plays; March 20, The Lester Opera company, a costumed classical play. The course has been well patronized this season, showing that Sparta folks want the high class entertainments.

County Superintendent Harriet Hutson was invited to attend the annual banquet of the Winona Grange Brethren's association held Saturday, Feb. 4, at Hotel Winona in Winona, and she spoke to the women of the association. This date was the completion of a five day drive for new members. The organization already has a large membership in Winona county.

The Sparta Red Cross will sponsor an art exhibit. The public will be given an opportunity to view the drawings made for the American Red Cross by Miss Anna Milo Tjornehoj, which have become familiar from the productions made in color and used in the Junior Red Cross work the past year. The pictures will be exhibited in Sparta, in the city hall Feb. 10 to 14 inclusive. The first showing of the pictures was in the Occorran gallery of art on the national capital. They were shown last year and viewed by more than sixteen thousand children.

"Jerushy!" ejaculated the country man, with bulging eyes. "When am I a-goin' ter git time ter spe' th' town?"

CONFERENCE MAKES PEACE MORE CERTAIN AND VASTLY LESS EXPENSIVE--SIMONDS

EXPERT EXPLAINS POINTS IN WHICH PARLEY SUCCEEDED

Declares Japan Made Greatest Success of all Nations at Washington

By FRANK H. SIMONDS

WASHINGTON.—The Washington Conference has passed into history. The formal phase of the first international conference held in the United States is now ended.

Of what was done here much must await the test of time and experience, but in two directions the achievement was clear, distinct and seems certain to endure. By a political treaty we have cleared up the situation in the Western Pacific, so far as it affects the United States, Great Britain and Japan. By a naval treaty, we have abolished competition and limited national strength as between these three nations for a period of fifteen years.

The fact that France signed the Pacific Treaty and France and Italy the naval agreement, although both circumstances are of a certain value. What is most important is that the three great naval powers have arranged their political interests and regulated their naval programs in such fashion that the possibility of war is removed and the expense of competitive building abolished.

Failed in European Affairs
Successful in dealing with Anglo-Japanese-American questions, the Washington Conference has only partially succeeded in the matters affecting the mainland of Asia and has frankly and undeniably failed where issues raised here were referred to present European problems as yet unsettled and differences between European countries which remain acute.

In the case of China the Washington Conference obtained substantial advantages in the matter of Shanghai, although not quite unconditional Japanese surrender. It adopted a number of interesting resolutions which it faithfully translated into action will have great benefit for the Chinese, but it did not and could not persuade Japan to retire from Manchuria or in any complete fashion release China from its grip. And the same was equally true in the matter of Siberia.

Diplomatically speaking the great success has been Japanese. In return for very moderate sacrifices in the matter of Shanghai, sacrifices which had been already foreseen—even promised to Mr. Wilson in Paris—Japan retains, subject only to formal protest by the United States, her position both in Siberia and in Manchuria. In return for an agreement not to fortify further some islands which were unimportant and others which are already securely fortified, she has exacted from the United States pledges of non fortification which make it impossible for the United States to employ its fleet in a military fashion beyond the Hawaiian Islands.

For the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, which was no longer of value, Japan has obtained a Four Power Treaty which adds greatly to her prestige as a world power, insures her against attack by challenge from the United States and leaves her with hands free to deal with both China and Siberia as she may hereafter choose. Save as the United States might ally itself with Britain and make use of British naval bases, there would be in the future no way of American intervention in the Far East.

British Gains Too
British success has lain in two things, in exchanging the Anglo-Japanese Alliance for the Four Power Treaty, which in all British minds is a symbol of close association in the future between the two great English speaking nations in the world. And in addition Britain has avoided a naval competition with the United States which promised either bankruptcy or ultimate resignation of equality upon the blue water which Britain has ruled so long.

As for the United States, in return for sacrifices which are by all odds the most considerable, we have abolished a danger of ultimate collision with Japan in the Pacific and the immediate costs of a naval competition with Britain which had no warrant in policy or justification in interest. In doing this we have scrapped a naval program which might have made us the supreme naval power and consented to the greatest single sacrifice in scrapped ships.

By comparison with the Paris Conference the Washington gathering has dealt with a relatively restricted set of problems. But like the Paris Conference, it has been hampered and blocked by the clash of the rival interests of various nations. Because Britain and France had not composed their European differences in advance of our conference, settlement on all naval issues beyond those of capital ships and certain minor details in other directions was prevented. Because Japan was unready to sacrifice a position acquired by aggression, a stable condition of peace on the mainland of Asia was not established.

War Rules Not New
As to the long list of rules regulating naval warfare which we have adopted here, almost without exception our action has been no more than the reaffirmation of principles universally accepted before the World War, both in the case of submarines, poison gas and other weapons. Conceivably what was repudiated when war came, eight years ago may be maintained hereafter, but if this happens it will result from the lessons of the war, not from any declaration made in conference now or in the future.

The lesson of the Washington Conference is clear. When nations have adjusted their relations with each other, when they have arrived at political and geographical adjustments, then they can reduce their navies and curtail their military and naval expenses. Today the world waits upon such adjustments between Britain and France, between France and Germany, between Russia and all of her neighbors, for the limitation of naval and the much greater military forces now existing.

And, by contrast, the equally patent lesson of Washington is that where political adjustment have not been made and cannot be easily and simply arranged, neither disarmament nor limitation of armaments can be agreed upon. Between Britain, the United States and Japan the moment had arrived, hence we had an arrangement. Between France and Britain, for example it had not arrived, therefore we had the conflict which marred the conference.

Success and Failure
An experiment in idealism the Washington Conference failed both in Asia and in its European aspects. As an application of common sense to the relations of three nations, whose public desires peace, whose policies were in no real sense conflicting it was a genuine success. It has saved some money at once and it has prevented much waste of money in the future. It supplies an example for all friendly nations in their relations hereafter. Beyond any question we may expect some similar course to be adopted by France and Britain presently and equally between France and Italy and then we shall have some form of holiday in the matter of submarines and auxiliary ships.

The Washington Conference has not disclosed a new way to avoid war, to abolish the fundamental causes of differences between peoples. It has merely indicated a way for nations without fundamental differences of interest, to maintain peace and to maintain it inexpensively. It furnishes no light in the case of France and Germany, Poland and Germany or, for that matter Greece and Turkey which are now actually at war. Such a Conference is not in any sense a substitute for the League of Nations which undertakes to adjust differences between conflicting nations.

Such success as the Conference had, no one will attempt to deny the success, resulted from the undertaking to limit the naval armaments of nations which had no cause and no desire to fight, or to prepare for a fight. Such failures as occurred, and they were inevitable, resulted from the attempt to apply the method to conditions in which the political adjustments had not been made and could not be made.

The Real Achievement
As I have said, the Washington Conference did not restore peace between hostile nations. What it did do, and the service was exceedingly useful, was to demonstrate how peace between friendly nations can be made more certain and vastly less expensive.

G. C. WON'T LET STEEL COUNSEL ASK ABOUT HIS PROFITS

Milwaukeean Sustained in Refusal to Tell What He Made in "Pittsburgh Plus" Case

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Digging into the profits of the Pressed Steel Tank company of Milwaukee, since its organization twenty-one years ago, counsel for the United States Steel corporation struck a snag Tuesday during the Federal Trade commission's investigation into the Pittsburgh plus case when R. P. Dickelmann, secretary of the company, refused point blank to name the company's earnings.

Attorney W. W. Corlett, corporation collector, appealed to Examiner J. W. Bennett to instruct the witness to answer but the examiner ruled that Mr. Dickelmann might refuse as a point of personal privilege. The ruling brought a strong protest from Mr. Corlett.

"In any question of competition, it is most material to develop what profits these concerns make," the counsel declared. "If this company is making an exorbitant profit it can go farther into the market. To allow the witness to testify as he did yesterday, that he cannot tell in eastern territory due to the Pittsburgh plus, and then bar testimony on profits is to close any door to show whether the witness' statements were correct."

K. B. Steinbauer, attorney for the commission, entered a formal objection to the corporation counsel's line of questioning.

FARMERS USE LIMESTONE
ROUSTON, Minn.—A number of farmers near here are interested in obtaining agricultural limestone, which they will use to sweeten sour soils, in order that clover or alfalfa can be sowed thereon. The limestone can be obtained at very reasonable rates, in carload lots at $3.10 per ton at this place. Several farmers around Rouston are also intending to use a lot of the limestone.

With enough money, enough time and enough luck, a man may get back the health he has lost—or part of it.

It takes patience, too. And then there may be no success, or only a little.

It's better to save what you have than hunt for what you've lost—as the most successful health-restorers will tell you.

Much of the loss of health is due to faulty, careless diet. Wrong meals at all times and right meals at wrong times load the long-suffering digestive MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Oscar P. Lundgren, according to both County Attorney Floyd Olson and Chief of Detectives Frank Brunskill, has confessed to them that he attacked Mary Blake, 1700 Forty-ninth avenue north, who narrowly escaped death when beaten over the head with a blunt instrument at a fairly spot near her home Monday night.

Lundgren, disheveled and blood-stained, was captured near the scene of the attack after a short chase.

Lundgren was arrested more than two years ago, charged with the murder of Mrs. Madelyn La Croix, who was beaten to death with a baseball bat at Lake Minnetonka. He was tried and acquitted. Tuesday, according to Chief Brunskill, he told of freely suffering "strange spells" and lapses of memory, accompanied by unaccountable desire to inflict pain and injury, and when pressed, confessed it was possible he had killed Mrs. La Croix while suffering such a spell.

Grilled on Bowers Murder

Meanwhile the detectives and prosecutor grilled him on the killing of Dorothy Bowers, who was the victim of a "lust murder" in the fall of 1920 a short distance from the scene of last night's attack.

Lundgren, they said, feigned insanity when the details of the Bowers case were reached.

Mr. Olson pointed out that admissions by Lundgren in the La Croix case and the Bowers case would have widely varied meanings. Even though he confessed the La Croix murder now, he could not be placed on trial again for that crime, having once been acquitted. But in case he admitted a connection with the Dorothy Bowers murder, it would be an entirely different matter, the prosecutor said.

Detectives sought to link Lundgren with the long series of night attacks on women that terrified the Twin cities at the time of the Bowers killing.

Lundgren lives at 1521 James avenue north, not far from the scene of the Bowers murder and Monday night's new attack.

Has Desire to Inflict Pain

In making his confession of the attack on Miss Blake, Lundgren told the authorities, Mr. Olson said, that he at times was seized with uncontrollable desire to inflict pain, abuse or destroy anyone with whom he came in contact.

He was seized with such a desire after talking to the girl, he said, and gave it free rein. He added he had taken two drinks of moonshine whiskey shortly before and that the liquor clouded his reason and blunted his memory so he could not recall all the details clearly.

According to County Attorney Olson, Lundgren shows no signs of insanity, but is merely playing a crafty game in pretending to have lapses of memory when he is not responsible for his acts.

"Lundgren confessed to the attack on the girl," Mr. Olson said, "but the confession was unnecessary. We have sufficient evidence against him to obtain a conviction for that crime. What the police and I are interested in is to get information from him that will help clear up the murders of Madelyn La Croix and Dorothy Bowers."

HARDING NOMINATES
ENVOYS TO FORMER ENEMY COUNTRIES

WASHINGTON.—Diplomatic representatives to Germany, Austria and Hungary were nominated Tuesday by President Harding. A. B. Houghton, New York, being selected as ambassador to Germany; Albert H. Washburn of Massachusetts as minister to Austria; and Theodore Brentano of Illinois as minister to Hungary.

FIFTY-SEVEN VARIETIES OF COINS

Ira, according to Aristotle, was once extensively employed as currency. Lead has also served as money—in fact, it still does in Burma. Copper has been more widely employed as money than either of the two last-mentioned metals. The Hebrew coins were composed chiefly of it, while down to 265 B. C. the sole Roman coinage was an alloy of copper.

The money was once used in England, probably on account of the rich tin mines in Cornwall. Early English coinage contained much of this tin money, principally in the form of farthings and half-pence.

Silver formed the basis for the early Greek coins, and was used in Rome first in 269 B. C. Medieval money was first composed of silver.

Apprentice System Revived

The subject of training apprentices in the various trades of the Government Printing Office was taken up near the close of the fiscal year, and the conclusion was reached that the apprentice system which was discontinued by that office more than thirty-five years ago ought to be re-established.

A plan for examining and appointing apprentices has been submitted to the Civil Service Commission. It is expected that a suitable examination will be held in the near future and that the training of apprentices thereunder can be started in a short time.

CLARENCE HYDES
CELEBRATE THEIR
SILVER WEDDING

A DELIGHTFUL SURPRISE party was given Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hyde, 1027 Caladonia street, Saturday night in compliment to their silver wedding anniversary by a group of about thirty friends. This merry party included the home and brought with them flowers for the decorations and baskets of delicious refreshments. The party was given with roses, the living room with carnations and the dining table with narcissus. At the feast which was spread were two wedding cakes, the one for the bride, being decorated with white rose buds and silver leaves and the one for the bridegroom with snail. In the bride's cake were found the usual tokens, the ring falling to the lot of Mr. S. A. Mann, the thimble to Miss Ida Shepard and the piece of money to Miss Esther Hyde. Mr. and Mrs. Hyde were presented with some handsome pieces of silver and a purse of money. They were also showered with happy congratulations and wishes for many returns of the day.

UKRAINE HAS NO
GRAIN TO SHARE WITH RUSSIANS

"Flour Bin" of the Nation Has Only Enough to Take Care of Own People

KIEV, Ukraine.—The Ukraine has been long known as Russia's sugar bowl and flour bin but the sugar bowl has been empty for three or four years and now the flour and cornmeal are so low that it is doubtful whether the Ukrainians will have enough bread to carry themselves through to another harvest. The hungry folks from the Volga famine district have invaded the Ukraine by hundreds of thousands. Moscow and Petrograd have drawn on its bread supply to the limit of their power.

The Ukrainians are, however, a fighting, independent lot who have stubbornly resisted requisition and deflected plans to divert their foodstuffs in large quantities to other parts of Russia. These requisitions and general dissatisfaction with conditions have played a large part in limiting the Ukrainian food supply. Besides the snows were an early in coming last fall that much of the grain seed was frozen in the ground before the snows came to give it protection. Consequently the Ukraine faces the possibility of a small grain yield next year. Even an extremely early spring sowing cannot compensate for the unfavorable condition of the crops planted last fall.

The attitude of the Ukraine toward Moscow is of far greater importance than that of all the other so-called "independent" republics because of its great wealth and common boundaries with Poland and Rumania. Moscow apparently regards the Ukrainian republic as a puppet part of the government, having its headquarters in Moscow. But Ukraine, probably under pressure of the intense Ukrainian nationalist sentiment, holds that it is quite independent of Moscow and aspires to support diplomatic negotiations with European powers to obtain recognition as an independent nation.

M. Rakovsky, the Rumanian socialist, who is now president of the Ukrainian Socialist Soviet republic, has been able, with Moscow's aid, to suppress all the larger movements against Russian domination of the Ukraine, but, nevertheless, the idea of complete independence of Moscow seems to be uppermost in the minds of the little Russians, peasants, merchants, laborers and professional classes alike.

Communism exists in the Ukraine in a much diluted form. M. Zinoviev, chairman of the executive committee of the Third International, and other high priests of Marxism visit little Russia occasionally and try to whip it into line with the Third International and the Moscow program. But the Ukrainians still aspire for independence.

Beneath the Sea

The variations of the depths of the seas are remarkable. From recent soundings we learn from a Paris contemporary that in certain parts of the Pacific Ocean the depths recorded is 8,000 metres. Other great depths are recorded at the North Atlantic, 5,201 metres; South Pacific, 8,500; South Atlantic, 7,400; Indian Ocean, 6,500; Caribbean Sea, 6,275. The water is 33 inches. On the other hand the Baltic is comparatively shallow, not quite 400 metres. In clear water, when the sun is shining, a diver can easily work at a depth of 20 metres. At 50 metres very little can be distinguished. Beyond that depth it is as dark as night.

Bear Island

Midway between Norway and Spitzbergen, Bear Island thrusts its head, known as Mount Misery above the cold waters. The whole island, save for the moss and lichens, is almost destitute of vegetation. Four ago it was joined with the Spitzbergen archipelago; the continental shelf upon which the island sits shows a drowned valley deepening to 200 fathoms; this marks the course of an ancient river and system that must have drained an area larger than the present basin of the Volga.

"Late Notes" For Commuters

At some of the Paris railroad stations used by commuters there is an official whose duty it is to issue late certificates to all who ask for them. Patrons of the road crossing at their business places after hours present these to back up the explanation "train late."

FAMOUS 137-YEAR-OLD INDIAN
OF NORTHERN MINNESOTA DEAD REFUSES BED TO THE LAST

CASS LAKE, Minn.—Arrangements were to be completed Wednesday for the funeral of Oa-De-Nah-Gew-Wonah, Chippewa Indian, said to be 137 years old, who died here Tuesday.

It is planned to hold services in the Catholic church here on Thursday. The dead Indian, also known as Winkled Meat and John Smith, joined the church several years ago. According to present plans there will be only simple services, with no Indian ceremonies.

Winkled Meat died, not of old age, but from pneumonia, contracted a week ago. When the pneumonia lay on the floor holding out to the last against being placed in a bed, which he contended was no place for a husky warrior.

Several years ago, when struck by a switch engine, he was taken to a hospital, but refused a bed, seeking instead a "comfortable place" on the floor. He rolled into a blanket and remained on the floor for three weeks until he recovered.

Most of his life was spent in northern Minnesota in the vicinity of Cass Lake, and his birthplace, near what is now Pokegama.

For 100 years of his life he had been married, having had eight wives. The only survivor, however, is Tom Smith, a stepson, at whose home he lived.

NORTH SIDE BAND
PLANS TOURNAMENT AND OTHER EVENTS

Live Organization Now Has Playing Membership of Thirty-two Men

A most enjoyable supper was given at Woodman hall, Rose and St. James streets, Monday evening, February 6, to the members of the North La Crosse Military band, after which a rehearsal was held and plans for the coming season outlined.

A committee was appointed to take up the matter of securing new uniforms for the band, and making arrangements for a public entertainment in the near future. A band tournament lasting several days to be participated in by musical organizations from surrounding cities and towns within a radius of fifty miles from La Crosse for substantial prizes, is also being discussed and unless unforeseen obstacles prevent there will be interesting things for the city in a musical way the coming season.

At present the North La Crosse Military band has a playing membership of 32 pieces, having recently taken in several new members from the south side, the membership being about equally divided between the north and south sides of the city.

It is practically decided to increase the membership to forty or more men, the entire band to play as a unit for concert purposes and to have within its membership two complete bands for parade playing, each consisting of 20 or more players.

It is hoped and expected to make this organization one that the city of La Crosse will be proud to acknowledge as one of its "going concerns."

The band is not going out to solicit funds for ask for charity from a long suffering public, but on the contrary is going to first "deliver the goods." Then, if the kind and quality suits the city of La Crosse (not the "north side," "east" or "west" side, but the "whole town") it will be glad to be paid for it.

HUNDRED PER CENT A MONTH INTEREST RATE IN MOSCOW

Soviet Capital Has Become a Paradise for the Money Lenders

MOSCOW.—One hundred percent a month is the average interest charged in Moscow, which has become a money lender's paradise. Notwithstanding the seven trillion or more rubles printed in the last four years, there is not enough money in circulation to accommodate the demands of business and speculation. Virtually everybody lives by speculation and the daily clamor for loans of from 20,000,000 to 200,000,000 rubles each.

The interest rate does not look so high to a man who can triple his money by the simple expedient of journeying to distant points like Kiev or Tashkent, where food is cheap, and bringing back a few hundred pounds of flour, honey or potatoes.

If a group of people wish to open a store they offer say, 100,000,000 rubles, payable at the end of a month, for the loan of a like amount. Then they charge three or four times the legitimate price of their commodities and both they and the money-lender profit.

The money-lender is secured against loss by the deposit of jewelry or other negotiable property. Money-lending at such rates is against the law, which however is rarely invoked. If it were, the Cheka would be obliged to look up most of the business people of the city, including many communists.

RETURN NOTES TO FILM STARS CLAIM POLICE

Follows said: "I wore a rap and overcoat."

Miss Normand had informed the police she left Taylor between 7:30 and 7:45 o'clock, and with Edwards telephoning at 7:30 o'clock. It is indicated that the murder was committed sometime between 7:30 and 7:45 o'clock.

Publish Love Letter

The Los Angeles Examiner published an unsigned letter found among Taylor's effects in which the writer painted a vivid word picture of an imaginary life with Taylor in "a beautiful woodland lodge" where they would "be all alone."

The letter told how the writer would cook, sweep and dust, while Taylor "fetched the water and built the fire," how she would feed the birds and wait patiently, during soaks, for him to come home at night, and how in the evenings they would "sit cozily by the fire listening to the wind whistling outside."

Part of the letter was withheld by the Examiner.

Clue Disappears

Another disappearing clue in the case was a handkerchief labeled "S," but which the police did not believe was the property of Edward K. Sands, former houseman, now sought in connection with the case. Police said they believed this handkerchief belonged to a motion picture producer, and they wanted it so they would have something tangible with which to confront him as a basis for interrogation.

Former efforts to end the wide publicity given the case and those connected with it were also intensified.

The disappearance from the Taylor home of a woman's pink silk night-dress which was said by Henry Peavey, houseman, to have been kept there, was another item deterrent to the investigation.

Police Establish Censorship

Police announced they proposed to limit the news given out by them in future. "The newspapers have been publishing everything and anything, and they will get nothing further from me in this case, until I get something worth while," said Captain David L. Adams. "I know nothing about any pink night-dress or any letters returned to actresses. I have several letters, four or five which the newspapers have not seen and which they will not see. They are from Taylor's mother and daughter and others, and are not connected with the case."

"The sheriff's office was also continuing a careful independent investigation. It was indicated that Peavey, the houseman, would be again questioned there about certain details which it was commonly reported he had withheld in previous statements but had disclosed to friends."

Peavey Hysterical

After the funeral yesterday, when Miss Normand was brought back into the church in a faint, Peavey approached hysterical. He sought out Douglas MacLean and talked with him nervously for sometime. MacLean declined to disclose the purport of the talk. He occupies the house adjoining that in which the murder was committed.

Belief was expressed by deputy sheriffs that Peavey holds the most important key to the notice for the murder of the director.

It was said that he will be asked in detail concerning the visit of Mabel Normand on that night and what occurred just before his departure when he left Mabel Normand alone with Taylor, who was shot and killed, investigators say, within an hour or probably within half an hour of this time.

PROMINENT ULSTER UNIONISTS CARRIED OFF BY RAIDERS

Kidnappers Believed to Have Come from Border Counties of Cavan and Longford

BELFAST.—By the Associated Press.—A large number of leading unionists of Counties Cavan and Longford, in the Ulster area, were kidnapped from their homes early Wednesday and taken to unknown destinations. Fifteen arrests have been made in connection with the kidnapping.

The raiders are believed to have come from Counties Cavan and Longford, near the border. The forces, known as the "E. Sperris," were mobilized in Tyrone and Fermanagh and pushed to the scene of the kidnapping. The Ulster government announced its intention of taking drastic measures.

Among those kidnapped was Major Murray, son of Anthony Murray, head of the Tyrone Orangemen. The major stiffly resisted and finally was wounded.

Former High Sheriff Carson of County Fermanagh, whose house was raided, resisted for an hour until he was wounded and carried off in a motor car.

The section of the Severson act which automatically revokes the license of a saloonkeeper convicted of a violation of the prohibition law as cited in the recent law enforcement order of Chief of Police Webber follows:

"That officers may inspect these premises at any time without a warrant; that the conviction of the owner of any such premises to whom and for which such permit (Class A) is issued on a charge of maintaining a disorderly or riotous indecent or immoral house, or permitting gambling in any form on his premises; or for violating any of the laws relating to the prohibition of the manufacture, sale and unlawful possession or use of intoxicating liquors shall be arrested promptly and brought into court for prosecution if he shall continue to sell any alcoholic beverage therein, because said Severson law automatically revokes his permit so to sell upon conviction as aforesaid."

Mr. Harold Oyen, a fourth, not to be overlooked, was Biggles, the brother taken by Mr. P. D. Hankerson, whose righteous air and painful dignity got a laugh at his first entrance.

G. Vernon Marti who took the part of Michael Flynn, acted the part of "Kathleen's" overbearing uncle very convincingly. The unfortunate thing in the whole performance if one excepts the occasional excess of zeal on the part of the orchestra was the fact that Jerry, the dog, did not appear in the finale so the audience was not relieved of the depressing conviction as to the fate of that intelligent animal so vividly suggested in the first act.

Credit also is due Mrs. J. R. Kerr for the splendid work she did in a musical way for the production. Mrs. Kerr presided at the piano at last evening's performance.

LOS ANGELES MAYOR HOT IN DEFENSE OF MOTION PICTURE COLONY MORALS

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—A reply to an entire group of people such as those engaged in the motion picture, for incidents, many of them not true as to fact, which have been published here recently, was issued by Mayor George E. Cryer, it was learned Wednesday. It follows:

"The attacks being made, particularly in outside cities, against the morals of the so-called motion picture colony in Los Angeles are unfair and, I believe, to hastily formed conclusions by people not familiar with real facts."

"The Arbach case and the slaying of Mr. Taylor were indeed unfortunate affairs, but it is not just to criticize an entire group of people such as those engaged in the motion picture, for incidents, many of them not true as to fact, which have been published here recently."

"Los Angeles is proud of the fact that it is the motion picture capital of the world. While my acquaintance with personnel of the men and women engaged in this industry is not large, I am persuaded that there are hundreds of clean law-abiding citizens engaged in the making of motion pictures and in their behalf I ask the open minded judgment and the even hand justice characteristic of our American people."

The men agreed to resume work on condition that the government refrain from reprisals in the form of wholesale discharges. The government promised that the regular workers would be reinstated.

SUICIDES AFTER ARREST

CHICAGO.—Herbert Malloney, one of two bandits arrested after they had engaged in a pistol fight with policemen during a jewelry store hold-up a few days ago, committed suicide Wednesday by jumping from the sixth floor of the Clark street jail. Malloney was wounded in the pistol fight after he had shot a police sergeant.

JEWELS MUST HARMONIZE

Following the fashion set by the French, women of America are wearing a great many jewels. Even during the day one sees two and three necklaces worn at the same time. But they must harmonize, contrast or relate in some way! The newest and quite the most correct way of wearing a collection of ornaments is this arrangement of pearls and diamonds, all white with a single accent of color, the ruby. The brooch, too, is coming into its own, but instead of being worn at the neck or at the point of a rather low neck, with an eye to bringing out the beauties of her figure, Madam fastens the gems low on her bodice, possibly at the waist line.

HAITI SPOKESMAN OPPOSES DISPATCH OF COMMISSIONER

Declares United States Official Would be Tantamount to Protectorate

WASHINGTON.—Protesting that the appointment by the American government of a high commissioner in Haiti is suggested by the special commission investigating conditions in that country, would amount to placing that country under a protectorate, Dr. Pierre Huelin of Port Au Prince, told the committee at hearings Wednesday, that the Haitians would not recognize the right of this country to interfere with their independence.

"You delivered Cuba from Spain, and can impose conditions upon her," he asserted, "but Haitians have their own birthright to be free, not won by the sword with the assistance of the United States."

Dr. Huelin insisted that the United States had "abandoned Haitian freedom," and had "imposed despotism and terror."

The United States recognized Haitian independence in the treaty of 1915, he continued, stating that the treaty had proved a "failure," and predicting that appointment of a high commissioner would also be a failure.

The final block of the Schweizer-Funk billiard match will be played at the La Crosse club Wednesday night at 8:30. C. H. Schweizer is playing 1,500 points to 1,000 for Arthur Funk. The score now stands 1,200 for Schweizer to 601 for Funk.

ROAD LOSES APPEAL IN VOTING CASE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The supreme court Wednesday dismissed the appeal of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad from the ruling of Judge Fitzgerald who fined the company $100 and costs withholding an employee's wages for time spent in voting on election day. The court ruled that as the prosecution was under the criminal code, an appeal as in a civil case, was not in order.

COUNCIL COMMITTEES RECOMMEND WALKS BUILT IN THE CITY

Favor Construction of Approximately Three Miles of New Sidewalks Here

The highways and ways and means committees of the common council in session Tuesday evening recommended the construction of approximately three miles of new sidewalks in the city.

To insure the safety of pedestrians on Mormon Road, the committee recommended a center walk running along the south side of the road to the city limits to be constructed immediately. When the ground is graded, a cement walk was recommended to be made.

In addition the committee recommended new alley crossings on Hazard, St. Cloud and St. James streets on the north side.

SUSPECT OF LIQUOR VIOLATION IS BEING HELD BY THE POLICE

Robert Williams, Jersey City, New Jersey, is being held at Central station as a suspect of a liquor violation.

Since his residence in the city of about three months, Williams has been employed by O. K. Haffs, selling tooth brush sterilizers, the police said. Recently he has been seen loitering around the Burlington depot and when arrested, a small whiskey glass was taken from his person.

He is being held pending investigation, according to the police.

ACCOUNTS ARE SHORT CITY CLERK RESIGNS

STURGEON BAY, Wis.—City Clerk John C. Acker is short in his accounts $1,500. It was announced at a meeting of the common council Tuesday night, when Acker filed his resignation, which was accepted.

A report of the accountants of the state tax commission was read indicating the shortage.

It is said the money was obtained by retaining sidewalk assessments, drawing checks for bond coupons and bills that did not exist, as well as in other ways.

Acker has an excellent war record, having served for over two years in France, as sergeant major in the 107th ammunition corps with Major Imhof.

Moonshine and gambling are given as the causes of his downfall.

Obituary

GEORGE MALE

George Male, formerly a resident of South Sixteenth street, La Crosse, passed away at the home of his mother in Stevens Point on February 7, after a lingering illness of a year. He is survived by his mother and two brothers of Stevens Point, and one brother, Earl, of La Crosse.

FRANK FITZ

Frank Fitz born May 11, 1890 at Hastings, Minn. He leaves to mourn his loss his parents and one sister, Mrs. Friend Blanchard, La Crosse. Funeral will be held at 8:30 Friday morning from Dwyer's funeral parlors and at 9:00 o'clock from St. Joseph's Cathedral. Rev. Peter Pate officiating. Interment in the Calvary cemetery.

Chats With Your Gas Man

Do you always have your gas range oven well heated before using? You should do so for both the baking and broiling oven. Ten minutes is an average allowance for the baking oven and five minutes for the broiling oven.

This method involves no waste of gas, because if food is placed in a cold oven, the cooking will take just so much longer; besides, the results will not be so good. If the recipe calls for a moderate oven, reduce the flame one-half at the end of ten minutes. For a quick oven, keep burners lighted during all or nearly all of the baking.

Also bear in mind that it is better to bake in tin pans instead of sheet iron or galvanized pans. The iron absorbs the heat and is more liable to burn the contents at the bottom and sides before the baking is done. You may not have noticed this in using the coal range, but the heat of the gas range is much more intense and direct.

KEELERITES TRIM MILTON COLLEGE IN WHIRLWIND CONTEST

Locals Pile up Enormous Count of 82 to 16 on College Boys Tuesday

BUT SIX COUNTERS ALLOWED VISITORS FROM THE FIELD

Milton Defeated by Oshkosh Normal Twice this Year

Playing whirlwind basketball, "Tabby" Keeler's normalites trounced the Milton five 52 to 16 Tuesday night in the normal gym. The visitors were hopelessly outclassed from the beginning to the end of the game, but putting in a good losing fight and showed occasional bursts of speed and class.

Score on Subs

Five scattered counters in the second half were all that Milton was able to accumulate. All but one of these followed long shots, and nearly all were made after the second team had been substituted for La Crosse.

Play Fast Game

La Crosse played a fast, consistent style of game in the contest last night. The locals are adept at the short passing game, and their general floor work is fast and snappy. Several times, Branger and Stoneman, dribbled through the opposition and placed the ball within the key.

Beaten by Oshkosh

Milton college had been twice defeated by Oshkosh before coming to La Crosse. In the first game they were defeated 20 to 11, and in the second 27 to 19. Oshkosh has not yet been defeated in a conference game. There is no game scheduled between La Crosse and Oshkosh.

Lineup

La Crosse: Reay, Capt., Vondrashek, Reas, forwards; Poscovec and Zebell, centers; Ellinger, Stoneman, Schultz, Huseh, guards.

Milton: Oakley, R. Sayre, G. Sayre, forwards; Bill, Tuland, centers; Karkuse and Diller, guards.

MACHINE ERECTED TO CONSTRUCT DAM FOR HOKAH LAKE

CALEDONIA, Minn.—Mayor John Gengler has recently been down to Hokah where he superintended the erection of a machine for building the dam to form a new lake there, to take the place of the one that was destroyed in 1909. The machine is one originated by Mr. Gengler himself and consists of a scraper, drum and cable. It was put in place on the island, near Mt. Tom. The cable runs over the big hill thus named and is fastened to the scraper. The other end is fastened to the drum which, in its revolutions, pulls the cable on the scraper. In this manner, the dirt is removed from the hill to the site of the dam.

VERNON COUNTY POULTRY SHOW IS BIG EVENT

VIROQUA, Wis.—Vernon county's first poultry show, given by the Vernon County Poultry Association on the second, third and fourth of February was a highly satisfactory one and the number of exhibits made far exceeded the expectations of the association. An annual poultry show is now venerated by the success of the first one. There were three hundred and fifteen birds entered, and two hundred and one single entries.

It is urged that members of the association, the La Crosse Ski Club, the curling club, La Crosse Rifle Club, turn out 100 per cent strong at this annual affair.

Billy Evans

A bitter rivalry in athletics between two tank towns has created a sensation in western college circles.

As a result of this rivalry, athletics at Illinois and Notre Dame have received a severe jolt.

Sixteen players, stars in all branches of sport, have been suspended because they indulged in a post-season football game under assumed names.

For years there has been a great rivalry between the towns of Carlinville and Taylorville. In 1920, so the story goes, Carlinville won from Taylorville, 10 to 7, at Carlinville.

Last fall the two teams were scheduled to play at Taylorville. The Carlinville sports, desirous of again triumphing Taylorville, hit upon the idea of loading up with Notre Dame players. It was the intention to financially clean out Taylorville.

To digress for a moment and tell you something about these two towns that have stirred up all the trouble in western intercollegiate athletics.

Taylorville is credited with a population of 5,800. It is located 26 miles southeast of Springfield, the state capital. It boasts four mills, two carriages and wagon works, paper mills, agricultural implement works and a couple of banks. All of which make Taylorville look like a lively burg.

Carlinville, according to the census, has a population of 5,212. It has a tile and monument works, brickyard, coal mine and is a trade center for the agricultural district. Blackburn college, a small institution, is located there.

The word was passed to the Carlinville sports to bet the family plate on the home team. The secret, however, leaked out that a number of college stars would be imported for the game.

Consternation reigned in Taylorville when the news arrived via the gossip route. It was preposterous to think of sending the home town boys against nationally famous stars.

Then a few of the leading citizens, among them being the proprietor of the leading grocery, the keeper of the inn and the owner of the flour mill, set about to strengthen their eleven Taylorville landed nine of the Illinois stars. The Taylorville sports were wise enough to get a good quarterback. Carlinville overlooked that feature. It was the quarterback who decided the issue. Sternmann, the Illinois quarterback, kicked three field goals.

Down at Taylorville and Carlinville they are still discussing the game. It will furnish gossip for years to come for the sports down that way.

Incidentally Coaches Zuppke of Illinois and Reelce of Notre Dame are no doubt using language at the present time that can't be printed in the best family newspapers.

Anyone interested in putting over the event is requested to be present at the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce at 7:30 tonight.

WISCONSIN REFUSES COAST INVITATION FOR TRACK MEET

Wishes to "Curb Exploitation of Athletics" is Faculty Answer

MADISON, Wis.—The University of Wisconsin Tuesday night declined the invitation of the University of California to participate in an inter-sectional track meet at Berkeley on April 15.

The athletic council in refusing to accept the offer of the western school, gave as the reason for its action the desire to curb exploitation of athletics, which is resulting in a "plague" of inter-sectional contests which has turned college faculties against a participation of athletics in school life.

Wisconsin and Minnesota have always maintained a conservative attitude on the question of post-season and inter-sectional contests, and a member of the council said, "We wish to find how other members of the conference feel with regard to it, and bring the matter to a head."

TO PROBE "PRO" CHARGES

Charges of professionalism made against Wisconsin athletes will be investigated by the University athletic council at a special meeting here Wednesday afternoon. All evidence will be gone into with a view to determining finally if any players in the school have violated the conference rules.

MADISON BOWLERS GO IN THIRD PLACE IN STATE TOURNEY

MADISON, Wis.—Two Madison bowlers, Tony Schwoegler and Poe Hackett Tuesday went into third place in the doubles at the state bowling tournament, with a count of 1223, three pins behind second position.

Their first four games resulted in a total of 561 and it appeared that they would force their way into the lead. Splits lowered Schwoegler's score and prevented anything better than third place.

R. Masse and L. Van Beck, Green Bay, bowled 1198 for fifth place in doubles as the other only feature of the day.

Wonderful Shooting By Becker On Handicap Targets

Ogden, Utah, Trapshot, Won Two Championship Contests and Averaged 85 Per Cent from 20, 21 and 22 Yards

BY PETER P. CARNEY
(Editor National Sports Syndicate.)
Just a few lines about a trapshooter living in Ogden, Utah, who performed in an exceptional manner on handicap targets in 1921. The shooter in question is G. L. Becker, president of the Becker Products company, and known to shooters the country over as "Gus" Becker. All Gus Becker did on targets shot from 20, 21 and 22 yards was to break 754 out of 775—an average of about 95 per cent. We doubt if any trapshooter in the United States has a better average at long distance targets than Becker, unless it is Frank Troch. Troch "busts" ten from 22 and 23 yards just about as well as he breaks them from 16 yards, but Troch is one shooter in a thousand.

When we hear of a shooter breaking an average of 95 per cent from the back marks we feel that he is entitled to credit, therefore Mr. Becker may take this for a boost. No averages have been compiled as yet on handicap targets by the American Trapshooting association so we cannot tell at this time if any one has a better average than Becker, but we are giving you his figures because we know they are good, and the figures also prove that a shooter can break 'em from the back mark if he makes up his mind. Becker at 16 yard targets broke an average of 95.50, which would indicate that he is just as good at the handicap distances as at 16 yards.

How He Did It

Becker opened the season at handicap targets on February 20 at San Francisco and on three straight days he shot at 50 targets from 21 yards and on the other day shot at 25 from the same mark. He missed 14 targets in the 175. From San Francisco he went to Los Angeles and two days shot from 21 yards and two days from 20 yards, breaking 95 out of 100 from 21 yards and 99 out of 100 from 20 yards. Later at Ogden he broke 96 out of 100 from 22 yards, at the Montana state shoot he broke 95 out of 100 from 22 yards and from the same mark in the preliminary and Grand American Handicap he broke 94 in each event.

It wasn't only at handicap targets that Becker had an excellent season. He did some mighty fine work on doubles. He won the Olympic club championship by breaking 95 out of 100 with 45 out of 50, and came to the Grand American Handicap with an average of 94. Then something happened. It was necessary to get the trigger on his gun fixed. The repair man changed the pull, and when Becker tried to use the gun in the doubles championship he staggered around the platform. He broke 78 out of 100, the lowest score he

VOLIVA TO FACE COURT FOR NAMES HE CALLED PARSON

Criminal Libel Suit Follows Hot Bill-board Campaign in Zion City

WAKEFELD, Ill.—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, "reverend of Zion" and successor to John Alexander Dowie, must stand trial for calling the Reverend Thomas H. Nelson, former pastor of Zion's church, "dirty, old, foul-mouthed blatherskite," and several other things, Judge Edwards decided Tuesday in grand court.

Judge Edwards upheld one of three indictments against Voliva, who pleaded "not guilty" through his attorney, Judge S. F. Barnes.

The indictments charging Voliva with criminal libel are an outgrowth of the bill-board and newspaper campaign conducted by Voliva against the independent church founded by his former disciple.

"HAIL THE WOMAN" CLOSES

"Hail the Woman," Theodore Roberts' great melodrama of American life and social conventions, closes to the end of its highly successful run at the Rivoli this evening. It will be succeeded tomorrow by Katherine MacDonald in "Stranger than Fiction."
 "Hail the Woman" is a picture which preserves the tender illusion of Romance in the midst of an atmosphere of stifling reality, introducing powerful situations, splendidly enacted, into the surroundings of everyday life. It tells "The Woman" of the Modern Age, a splendid product of the most modern of peoples, the American, Florence Vidor, whom Carl Sandburg so aptly styled the "unforgettable woman," interprets the role of Judith Bessford in a deeply dramatic manner. Not alone does Miss Vidor display a finished screen artistry, but she grasps the spirit, the basic underlying motive of the story, that she is the "Woman" conveying with convincing strength of character and devotion of the outstanding figure. Her fine characterization helps to make a powerful story an equally powerful picture. The role of weak, vacillating David Bessford, scarcely less important than Miss Vidor's, is ably handled by Lloyd Hughes, whose flair for strong dramatic characterization is most convincingly evidenced. The subtleties of the part, which imply David to be "more sinned against than sinning," owing to his complete domination by a religiously intolerant father, are faithfully interpreted by Hughes. Madge Bellamy, the recent "discovery," declared by critics to be the most promising type of real girlish beauty on the screen, displays an emotional quality which renders her interpretation of the role of Nan, pathetic girl-wife, deserted by David, a performance so wistfully appealing and poignantly sincere as to inspire the prophecy of even greater things to come for this gifted actress.

LAST DAY OF MAJESTIC BILL

The Majestic's snappy vaudeville bill, the first of its new week-day five-act policy, will give way this evening to another equally snappy that opens Thursday. It is also the last showing of "Salvation Nell," the picture built from Mrs. Pisk's famous stage success, which centers about the career of a slum girl who is rescued by the famous gospel organization and in her turn devotes her life to her former associates. "The picture for Thursday is Jack Holt in 'The Grim Comedian'."

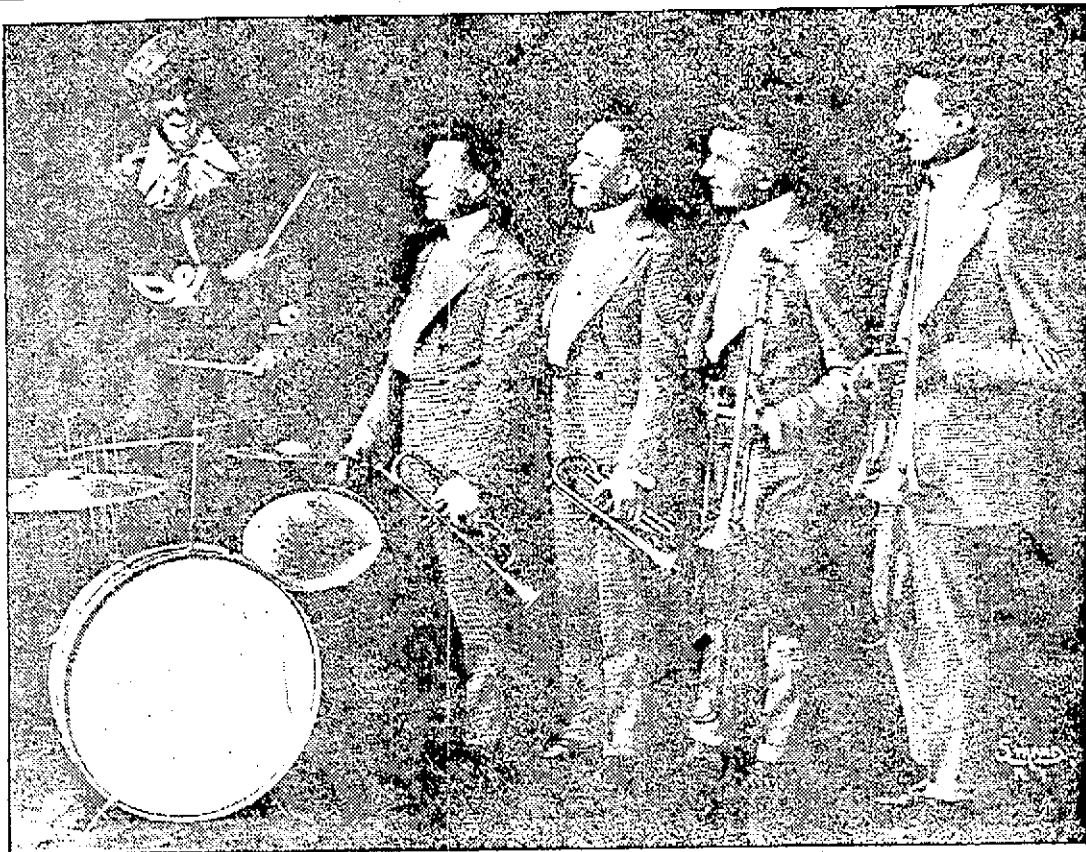

The locale of "Salvation Nell" is New York's east side, where amidst the tenements, the saloons and dives the Salvation Army works its wonders for humanity. It is the very human story of a homeless young woman in a most unhappy environment. Discharged from her sweatshop job, she obtains employment in the establishment of "Hash House Sal." She loses this position through her devotion to drunken Jim Platt. Then from scrub woman in a saloon she goes to the Salvation Army. How she affects the salvation of her Jim, after he is released from prison, constitutes the dramatic denouement of this extraordinary photoplay.

SESSUE HAYAKAWA—RIVIERA
 While many stars and directors have been bewailing the lack of stories suitable for the screen, Sessue Hayakawa, noted Japanese-American star, stepped right out and wrote one for himself. Not only did he write it, but he played the star part and made of "The Swamp" one of the brilliant productions of the season. It will be screened at the Riviera today and Thursday.

Though "The Swamp" marks his first attempt at story writing for photoplays it is by no means his first.

THESE FIVE FEATURE MAJESTIC VAUDEVILLE

"Miraculous Music Makers" is the billing which the Princeton Five give themselves as the feature act of the Majestic Orpheum vaudeville show, which opens on Thursday matinee.

The quiet present jazz and classical numbers in abundance, and a comedy drummer is said to be a great feature of the offering. Other acts on the Majestic bill for the "last half" are Charles and Anna Clocker, comedy water jugglers—whatever that may be. Jim Black, with a real vaudeville novelty, and an act billed as "The Wonder Girl," said to be a comedy scene novelty.

REPORTED DROWNED EVELYN THAW HAS PARTY TO CELEBRATE

May be Dead Broke, But Not Dead Declares Former Actress

NEW YORK.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw Tuesday night celebrated her "death" surrounded by friends in her apartment in West 52nd street, she made merry over the falsity of reports from Washington that her body had been found in the Potomac river.

"I may be dead broke, but I'm not dead," laughed Evelyn as she admitted reporters and welcomed them to join in the festivities, which would not win Mr. Volstead's approval.

The body found in the Potomac was of a woman 5 feet 8 inches tall and the frame is much larger than Evelyn's. However, the Washington police thought they observed a similarity, and the news was flashed that Evelyn had jumped into the river. Later in the day, however, two Washington newspaper men who knew Evelyn viewed the body and informed the police of the mistake.

Evelyn Nesbit had not been heard of along the Rialto since her venture as the proprietress of a rooming house at 225 West 52nd street, ended disastrously last month. On Jan. 18 a deputy sheriff and three men evicted her.

In October, when she was unable to meet her rent, she attempted suicide by taking fifteen grains of morphine. Prompt action saved her life.

Holder of the Sunday School Record, Samuel Winter, 62 years old, holder of the world's record for consecutive Sunday school attendance, as the proprietress of a rooming house at 225 West 52nd street, ended disastrously last month. On Jan. 18 a deputy sheriff and three men evicted her.

CANCEL ORDER FOR NEW GUNS IN FORTS IN THE PHILIPPINES

Weeks Says Action is Taken as Evidence of United States Good Faith in Treaties

WASHINGTON.—Orders for the sending of new guns to replace those in the Philippine Islands' fortifications were cancelled Tuesday by Secretary Weeks.

The action was taken, he said, as an evidence of the good faith of this country to carry out in spirit and letter the provisions of the treaty which grew out of the armament conference respecting armament of Pacific Islands.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.
